About The Property

Looking for a three-bedroom home with flexible accommodation in a popular village close to Cardigan? Set within the cul-de-sac of Preseli View in Llechryd, this well-proportioned home offers a ground-floor bedroom and bathroom, two further bedrooms and a second bathroom upstairs, off-road parking, low-maintenance outside space and oil-fired central heating.

Situated within the established cul-de-sac of Preseli View in the popular village of Llechryd, this three-bedroom ex-local authority home offers a practical and surprisingly flexible layout. With accommodation arranged over two floors, including a bedroom and bathroom on the ground floor, it could work particularly well for a range of buyers, whether looking for a family home, somewhere with space for visiting relatives, or simply the convenience of having bedroom and bathroom facilities at entrance level.

Llechryd sits within the Teifi Valley, approximately three miles from the historic market town of Cardigan, making this a handy position for accessing the town whilst retaining a village setting. The village itself has useful everyday amenities including a shop, primary school and community facilities, with the River Teifi also forming an important part of the local landscape.

The accommodation begins with a good-sized central hallway, with stairs rising to the first floor and doors leading to the ground-floor rooms. The neutral décor and carpeting give the property a straightforward backdrop for new owners to furnish and personalise.

The lounge is a comfortable reception room with a wide window providing plenty of natural light. A fireplace with an electric fire creates a focal point, while the proportions of the room allow space for a good arrangement of sofas and additional furniture.

The newly installed kitchen is fitted with a range of white wall and base units complemented by dark work surfaces and pale splashbacks. There is an integrated electric oven with hob and extractor above, together with a sink positioned beneath the window. Space is provided for additional appliances, and a door gives direct access outside, useful for everyday comings and goings.

One of the features that makes the layout particularly versatile is Bedroom One on the ground floor. This is a good double room with a wide window and plenty of space for bedroom furniture. Having a bedroom at this level gives the house an option that isn't always available in homes of this style and could equally allow the room to be used as a second reception room, home office or hobby room if three bedrooms aren't required.

Also on the ground floor is a bathroom fitted with a bath, WC and wash hand basin, with practical wall panelling around the bath.

Stairs from the hallway rise to a small first-floor landing serving two further bedrooms and a second shower room.

Both upstairs bedrooms offer useful proportions, with the shape of the roofline adding some character without compromising the overall usability of the rooms. Bedroom Two is particularly generous and has built-in storage, while Bedroom Three also provides good bedroom space. Together with the ground-floor room, the arrangement gives the property three genuine bedrooms spread across the two levels.

A shower room on this floor is a particularly useful addition and is fitted with a double shower, WC and wash hand basin. For a three-bedroom property, having bathroom facilities on both floors should make the layout much easier for day-to-day family life.

Externally, the property has been designed with relatively easy upkeep in mind. The outside space is predominantly hard landscaped, providing useful areas for sitting out without the maintenance associated with a traditional lawned garden. Fencing provides enclosure to the boundaries, while a detached storage shed/outbuilding gives somewhere for garden equipment, tools and general storage.

There is also off-road parking, another practical advantage, particularly within a village setting.

The property benefits from oil-fired central heating and double glazing, and the light, neutral presentation means it provides a good starting point for a buyer wishing to put their own stamp on the interior.

The location is another strong part of the package. Llechryd is well placed for Cardigan, where there is a much broader selection of independent shops, supermarkets, cafés and restaurants, together with schools, leisure facilities, theatre and other services. Cardigan's historic centre is focused around the River Teifi, Cardigan Castle and the Guildhall, with the town also providing straightforward access towards the coast.

For those wanting to make the most of this part of West Wales, the wider area offers plenty to explore. The Teifi Valley provides attractive countryside and riverside walks, while the beaches and coastal scenery of Cardigan Bay are within easy driving distance. Nearby Cardigan also provides access towards places including St Dogmaels, Poppit Sands and the wider Ceredigion and Pembrokeshire coastlines.

Overall, this is a practical three-bedroom home in an established village location, with the real advantage of having accommodation over both floors and a bedroom and bathroom at ground-floor level. The combination of off-road parking, manageable outside space, a bathrooms and shower room, and proximity to Cardigan should give it broad appeal, from families and first-time buyers through to those looking to downsize without necessarily wanting a conventional bungalow.
